GTEC WEEK 2004 (<http://www.gtecweek.com/>) is Canada's distinctive, multifaceted learning and networking event that celebrates public sector IT professionals. The 12th annual ceremony showcased revolutionary proficiency with technology solutions, enhancing online efforts for governments worldwide. The presentation of the awards celebrates the recipients' activities as they relate to collaboration, integration and innovation in their respective geospatial initiatives. The use of Intergraph's technology was instrumental in the operations of the winning organizations' Web sites as follows:

-- City of Hamilton was commended for its success with the MAP Hamilton Geographic Information System Web site (www.map.hamilton.ca), which manages e-government within the public sector. The Web site, built using Intergraph's proven solutions, has established City of Hamilton as a world leader in online solutions for government services.

-- The National Defence Mine/Countermine Information Centre (NDMIC) was honored for its creation of an insightful Web site that provides downloadable information to PDAs, CDs and handheld mappers for gathering vital information in the field. Partnering with GeoPATROL, NDMIC utilized Intergraph's IntelliWhere* OnDemand and GeoMedia* technology to respond to the demand for a powerful, cost-effective solution that offered both simplicity of use and proven success.
